Appearance Text
The largest building in the city (by far!) is over-grown with plants. The gates and windows are constantly trimmed to keep the plants at bay, but otherwise almost every foot of wall is covered. Since thieves were always climbing up by the plants in the past, people have in recent years been making sure that mainly roses and other thorny plants grow here.
Entry Text
A magnificent palace, wide passages, and spacious halls. Everywhere there are servants and guards. Neither especially friendly nor especially harsh, they simply go about their work. Paintings from all periods, done with an artistic hand, hang on the walls.

Appearance Text A little to one side, and hidden well in the shadows, is a circle of stone blocks, about 12 strides in diameter. There's grass growing in the circle, and it seems there are lines in the grass, running from one stone to the other. Only the druids are permitted to enter the circle, but there are no guards.
Entry Text On the inside you sense something slightly different, but you can't say what it is. Perhaps the magic energy is stronger here than elsewhere.
